

"ACTION FOR JUSTICE" Project Kicked off

CONCEPT

Nepal Disabled Women Association, NDWA has started a project in collaboration with CBM Global Nepal for Advancing social justice by actively working towards the elimination of sexual and gender-based violence against women & girls with disabilities.

Action for Justice (A4J) is aimed at securing accessible justice for women and girls with disabilities who are survivors of gender-based violence (GBV). The project emerged in response to alarming findings from recent research, empirical observations, media reports, and police briefings. These sources have highlighted the persistent challenges faced by women with disabilities in accessing justice and protection against GBV, despite existing laws that promise adequate measures.

UNIQUE ASPECTS OF THE PROJECT

"Action for Justice" stands out in both its issues and stakeholders:

- Issues: The project uniquely promotes and emphasizes accessible justice and protection for women and girls with disabilities against SGBV, a relatively new focus in our context.
- Stakeholders: The project engages a diverse range of stakeholders, including duty bearers, rights holders, and facilitating organizations. Each stakeholder group plays a crucial role in achieving the project's intended results, ensuring collective ownership and commitment.

Looking Ahead

We are excited about the potential impact of "Action for Justice" and remain committed to advocating for and securing the rights of women and girls with disabilities.
